

Puppies are whelped and raised in the kennel. To help socialize them, children are often invited to the kennel to play with the puppies.

Sassoon greets IHC members during a kennel visit.

A group of puppies get a visit.

Enjoying retirement, Captain gets a hug.

Stifle's pups born in 2004.

Hounds are kept in groups of their own choosing.

The kennel is a converted tobacco barn.

Iroquois hounds are fed the best dogfood available made by Purina.

Specially designed benches give hounds a place to go if other hounds are picking on them.

Each run has an inside “warm room” so hounds can sleep comfortably during the cold winter months.

This is the hound truck and trailer, which was custom designed.

The hounds ride comfortably to and from the meets. inside their trailer

IHC sign.

Each run has a number on the door, so if someone brings a hound back while the kennel staff are still out following hounds by auto, they can instruct them where to put the hounds.

